- While starting the timer, the cube and both hands should be placed on the table. The cuber should not be touching the cube.
- While stopping the timer, the cube and both hands should be placed on the table. The cuber should not be touching the cube.
- You get a penalty of +2 either if a participant crosses 15 seconds in the inspection time or was off by one move on the cube. A +2 penalty gets two seconds added to the actual solving time.

- DNF stands for Did Not Finish. A DNF is imposed if a participant takes more than 17 seconds during the inspection, in case of a corner twist, or if the cube is off by more than one move once the timer has been stopped.
- The average of the 12 solves will be taken after discarding the 2 best and 2 worst solve times, and averaging the middle 8 solves.
- The winner will be declared based on the average solve time.
- In case of ties among the top 3, the tie will be resolved by a one-on-one match with (average of 5 instead of 12 between the two tied cubers).
- Throughout the competition, the time will be monitored up to two decimal places.
- Note that a DNF is considered to be a worse result than any time or amount of moves, so on an average of 5 it will be removed along with the best solve, but if there are two or more DNF, then the average becomes a DNF as well. In a mean of 3, even one DNF will make the mean a DNF. A similar concept is true for DNS.
